Calvary Christian's Klingler Tops in District in Math Achievement

In math computation, Kyler Klingler of Calvary Christian School topped all other eighth graders in the Association of Christian Schools International Southwest Ohio District Math Olympics. Kyler, son of Steve and Donna Klingler, was champion for the second consecutive year. The district that CCS competes in encompasses some of the top Christian Schools in the Dayton and Cincinnati areas. School administrator, John Taylor commented, "Winning a very tough district two years in a row is a credit to Kyler for developing his God given ability."

Other Calvary students placing in the top eight of the district in their grade were: Tomas Kennedy, fifth in third grade computation; Cole Kennedy, tied for sixth in fifth grade computation; Darby Eades, seventh in sixth grade math reasoning; Bradon Studebaker, eighth in sixth grade math reasoning; Cole McDaniel, fourth in seventh grade computation; Austin Durnell, fourth in seventh grade math reasoning; Aubrey Kabua, sixth in eighth grade math reasoning; McKenzie Collinsworth, tied for seventh in eighth grade math reasoning.
